Foyle books

Foyle Books is the largest second-hand and antiquarian bookshop in the city. It is sited at Magazine Street overlooking the city walls and Castle Gate and houses a large general collection of books.

There are major sections devoted to Irish/Gaeilge, English literature and criticism, general and romantic fiction (in boards and paperback), crime fiction theology, travel, history and biography. Other shelves carry science fiction, gothic thrillers, war books and westerns. The non-fiction area has books on art, craft, health, gardening, cookery, society, sport, science, music, transport and the sea. There is an interesting poetry shelf, a large section for young people and a substantial French collection.

We buy books for cash or exchange them. We visit houses to offer advice on the evaluation and disposal of private libraries. We are prepared to offer valuable books for sale on a commission basis.

Foyle Books began life as the Wee Bookshop in Bond street in the early 1980's. In 1987 it dropped the "wee" from its name on moving to Distillery Brae. 1987 saw another move to even bigger premises on Spencer Road and a change of name to Book Bargains. Finally in January 1993 came the migration across the river Foyle to the old walled city.

The business was founded by Ken Thatcher who is now in partnership with Art Byrne.
